Bucks Men Missing On Plane

2 PUPILS ARRESTED AFTER BOMB SCARE

Police Trace Callers

Tullytown police last night arrested two 14-year-old Levittown boys and charged them with telephoning a bomb scare to Bishop Egan High School on Wednesday.

The youths, one from the Greenbrook section of Levittown and the other from the Pinewood section, were remanded to Juvenile Court in Doylestown and released in custody of their parents.

They have no previous record, police said. Both are freshmen at Bishop Egan.

Call Received

Chief of Police John Walterick said today that the bomb scare call was received approximately at noon in the office of Rev. Linus Carr, principal of Bishop Egan.

A youthful voice, obviously disguised, declared that a bomb had been planted in the high school and that it was set to go off at 2:15 p.m.

Father Linus notified the police. Rather than evacuate the school and then reassemble them to return to the building if no bomb were found, he had classes dismissed early for that day.

Unaware Of Threat

The students were unaware of the bomb threat, Walterick said today.

Police then searched the high school thoroughly. No bomb was found and when none had gone off by 3 p.m., they concluded that the telephone call had been a hoax.

Later yesterday Walterick, acting on information he had re-

2 Taking Photos In Alaska

Two Trevose men, one a pilot, the other an aerial photographer, were reported missing in Alaska today while enroute home in a company plane.

They are Milton Villiard, 55, the photographer and Wayne Campbell, the pilot, both living with their wives at Penn Valley Trailer Park on Old Lincoln Highway, north of Street Road.

The two, who are employed by the Aero Service Corp. of Philadelphia, were returning home after doing aerial photo work in that area since June.

No Word

They took off Wednesday night from Cordova to Juenau in Alaska, but no word was received from them since the flight began.

Lee Burton, chief pilot for Aero, said, that both were extremely experienced in their type of work and their twin-engine Beachcraft plane had survival equipment including life rafts, tents and similar gear.

Neither Villiard and his wife, Nelle, nor Campbell and his wife, Jane, have any children.

The company they work for is the largest of its kind in the world and the oldest flying corporation in the world, in existence since 1919 and conducts exploration mapping throughout the globe.

Villiard has been with the company since Feb. 1952 and had 27 years previous experience in aerial survey work, Burton said.

During his employment with the Aero company, he has conducted photo mapping missions in the U.S., the Virgin Islands, Central and South America and the Middle East.

Campbell has been a mapping pilot with the company since Dec. 1958 with 10,000 hours flying time. He is a fully qualified instrument pilot and has flown everything from the company's single-engine plane to its four-engine B-17s.

Burton said that the company has 28 aircraft and that only the most experienced and qualified pilots and photographers are employed because the work demands flying at relatively low altitudes on long flight lines which must be in exacting positon.

The company owns, operates and maintains all its own planes and has flown more than 5,000,000 miles.

Burton told the Courier-Times he is leaving for Juneau immediately to aid in any way the search or rescue of the two men.

Good Evening!

(P. W. for G. G. G.)

So it's a heat wave — the mercury in the 80's, the sun smiling down, a perfect weekend ahead. Who could ask for anything more?

And in far-off Los Angeles, they're warming up for the World Series with a real heat wave. The temperature reached 109 yesterday, 111 in San Diego. We'll take Lower Bucks.

The President on the West Coast today and he's thrown off all the phony wrappings of the non-political nature of this tour with his talks of yesterday and the day before.

Which could be bad or good, depending upon how you look at it. Point is, nobody should disagree with what he said — with his plea for a meaningful tax cut and his roasting of the John Birchers and their misguided way of thinking.

Hurricane Edith boiled her way out of the Caribbean. Let's hope somebody or something keeps this busy lady away from the mainland, far, far away.

Vandalism still plagues our local schools, and it's about time we put a stop to it. It can be done, you know.

Not the way one district tried it: By throwing an iron curtain of censorship over a particularly bad raid, suppressing all news about it — only to have the vandals return the very next night. What did they expect?

Okay, you asked for it. Here's the way they're going to wind up over the weekend: Penn over Lafayette, Princeton over Rutgers, Wisconsin over Notre Dame; Oklahoma over Southern Cal; Illinois over California and Neshaminy over Easton.

For some people the cost of living stays about the same — all they can borrow.

Man Found With Bullet In His Head

William Harris, 38, of 6 Lavender Lane, Lakeside, Levittown, was found half hidden in the brush on the shores of a lake near his home early this morning with a bullet in his head.

He was rushed to Lower Bucks County Hospital where his condition this morning was listed as still critical. He had not regained consciousness by noon.

A .22 caliber rifle was found beside Harris, Tullytown Chief of Police John Walterick said that his force was investigating the possibility of a suicide attempt.

Belonged To Harris

The rifle belonged to Harris, Walterick said.

The chief also said that he had uncovered no apparent motive for a suicide other than a vague worry about a layoff. Harris was an 18-year employe of the Roebling Co. in Trenton.

Harris had been missing since 11 o'clock last night, Walterick said, when Mrs. Harris returned from a church function to discover that he was not at home.

The Harrises have three children, the oldest 13 and the youngest 2½. The children were alone when Mrs. Harris got home, according to Walterick.

Typical Day For Football

Tomorrow should be a typical day for football.

At least that's the promise from the weatherman who says it should be partly cloudy and a little cooler with temperatures between 70-75 degrees.

Sunny skies today were expected to send the thermometer up to the 80-degree mark as Lower Bucks basks in Indian summer weather. At 3 p.m. the reading was 82 degrees.

For professional pigskin followers, Sunday's outlook is just as good — partly cloudy and cool with temperatures in the 60s.

Edgely Homes Waterless

The break was caused this morning by workmen laying sanitary sewer lines in the area.

A spokesman for the Alconn Utilities, general contractor for the $1,272,000 sewer project, said repairs were being made and that water should be restored during the day. Some homes had water running again by mid-morning after being shut off for two hours.

150 Attend

Approximately 150 persons attended the affair.

The new officers' names were presented for election by Burt Barshay, chairman of the nominating committee.

8,000 Jam Tabernacle

Mighty Choir Sings, Kennedy Perspires

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (UPI) — The mighty Mormon Tabernacle choir of 375 voices had the ancient structure throbbing with the soaring final bars of "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

A tall slender figure in a dark blue suit carefully flicked perspiration from his face as he intened intently, twisted in his chair on the Tabernacle rostrum for a view of the singers arrayed behind him. It was President Kennedy Thursday night slightly tired but pleased with the biggest ovation of his current western tour.

More than 8,000 persons jammed the vault-roofed Tabernacle and easily double that number swarmed futilely around each of the many entrances to the huge hall, striving to squeeze at least within sight of the rostrum where Kennedy was flanked by Democratic leaders — and President David O. McKay, 90-year-old spiritual leader of two million members of the Church of Jesus

Valachi Discloses Getting 'Death Kiss'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gangland turncoat Joseph Valachi told Senate investigators today that underworld overloard Vito Genovese gave him the Mafia's "kiss of death" by kissing him on the hand while they were cellmates in the Atlanta federal prison.

The stocky, red haired ex-mobster described Genevese as the "under the table" super-boss of organized crime. He also testified that Geneovese ordered the murder of sub-boss Tony Bender (Anthony Strollo) from his Atlanta prison cell.

Testifying publicly for the first time, Valachi told the televised hearing that Genovese described news reports of Bender's disappearance as "the best thing that could happen—he wouldn't be able to take it like you and I."

Valachi recounted the episode after testifying that he joined the disciplined "Cosa Nostra" crime cartel—"our thing, our family in English"—in 1930. Born in New York to Italian immigrant parents, he said he took to crime after dropping out of school at age 15 and working for about a year on a sand scow.

Speaking calmly—almost impassively—and chain smoking, Valachi gave the Senate investigations subcommittee a rambling account of intrigue behind the prison walls at Atlanta. He said he felt that Genovese marked him for murder after he sought an appointment with Genovese for a member of the Buffalo-Toronto "family" of the "Cosa Nostra" empire.

After the incident, Valachi said, the attitude of Genovese—who had invited Valachi to share his cell—"was beginning to change."

Finally, he said, there came an evening when Genovese asked Valachi and cellmate Ralph Wagner

Edith Still Dangerous

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI)—Hurricane Edith, packing 75 miles an hour winds and flooding rains, slammed into the eastern tip of the Dominican Republic today.

There were no immediate reports of damage, the Weather Bureau said.

In Miami, the Weather Bureau said a sharp northerly swing which carried the season's fifth storm into the eastern tip of the island of Hispaniola was a good indication that the hurricane will pose no threat to the United States.

"The center is over land now, and weakening," said the nation's chief hurricane forecaster, Gordon Dunn.

At Sabin Clinics Sunday

Family Immunization Will Take 5 Minutes

Officials of the Victory Over Polio campaign estimated today that less than five minutes will be required for a family to take the Sabin oral polio vaccine in Sunday's make-up feedings at clinics in Bucks County.

The estimate is based on time checks at several clinics during the first feedings held last Sunday in the five-county campaign to wipe out polio.

Less People

Although not all the clinics will re-open for the make-up vaccine, there will be less people to handle. The experience gained last Sunday, officials said, will be another factor speeding up the make-up feedings.

The complete list of clinics will appear in tomorrow's Courier-Times. Clinics will be open from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The Bucks County Medical Society, sponsor of the program, has urged everyone who did not get the Type I vaccine last week to do so at Sunday's clinics.

"We must get at least 80 per cent of the population immunized," a spokesman said, "or we cannot be sure that polio has gone down to fi. al defeat in this area."

Should Have Both

Even those who have had the complete Salk series should get the Sabin vaccine, the society said.

Bucks County Health Director Dr. William J. Meyer today predicted that more than 85 per cent of the county population will have —a "Cosa Nostra" outsider—to gather around his prison bunk in the seven-man prison cell.

Valachi said Genovese, describing himself as a good judge of character, began by saying " 'Sometimes you buy a barrel of apples and one of the apples is touched . . . That one has to be removed or it'll touch the rest of the apples.' "

When McClellan asked if Valachi found "significance" in the remark, the hoodlum replied: "I was just shaking my head and listening to him . . .

"He (Genovese) grabbed my hand and gave it a kiss," Valachi continued.

"I turned around and gave him a kiss on the other side, Valachi said.

He explained that his own kiss was a sign of waning respect for Genovese, who long had commanded his loyal allegiance.

Valachi said flatly that Genovese was "boss" of the "Cosa Nostra."

In that role, he said, Genovese bossed a "big family" of about 450 Cosa Nostra "soldiers" or rank-and-file mobsters. He said, however, that Genovese never could control the Brooklyn "Cosa Nostra family" bossed by Joe Profaci.

Valachi told the committee he finally asked to be placed in "the hole" — solitary confinement — to avoid what he felt was certain death at the hands of other prison inmates for turning informer.

"I thought a gang would form and stick a knife in my back and nobody ever would be arrested for it," he said.

He said he asked prison officials to put him in solitary and he spent four days there. "I wanted to go there because I felt they wanted to kill me," he explained.

But this was merely sealing his eventual doom, he said. "I'm a dead duck after I went into that hole. It was just like going to a police station (as an informer) on the outside," Valachi said.

In describing the prison cell meeting with Genovese, he said the unworld czar was my doombah . . . He stood up with me at my wedding." But he said his return kiss to Genovese was "to make him understand that I was wise to him."

After the bunk-side exchange of kisses, Valachi said, he and Wagner retired to their own bunks but he soon heard Wagner mutter: " 'Unh! the kiss of death!' " and Genovese kept pepping from his own bunk to see whether Valachi was still awake.

McClellan: "Did you, at the time, accept this as a kiss of death?"

Valachi: "Yeah; but I didn't think the kid (Bender) would get it."

He also said he felt Johnny Dio, former New York racketeer, was in on the conspiracy to kill him.

Valachi described how he attacked another inmate with a piece of iron pipe, killing him, in the mistaken belief that the prisoner was "Joe Beck" (Joe DiPalermo), one of those he felt was bent on killing him.

He said Genovese told him that the mysterious disappearance of the "Cosa Nostra" lieutenant, Tony Bender, was "the best thing that could happen to him because he couldn't take it . . ."

This "meant in our (underworld) language that he (Genovese) ordered his death," Valachi told the Senate investigations subcommittee.

The short, stocky ex-mobster and executioner said the conversation took place in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta after Valachi was returned to prison to serve a 20-year sentence for narcotics violations.

Valachi said he was startled to hear Genovese say that the disappearance of Bender was a good thing for Valachi's former crew chief in the underworld society.

"I said, what do you mean" Valachi testified.

"He (Genovese) said he (Bender) was a sick man and he couldn't take 'time', serving in prison like you and me . . ."

After he gave his interpretation of Genovese's comments, Valachi asked the senators: "Got it? Clear?"

Chairman John L. McClellan, D-Ark., replied that the testimony was clear.

Valachi, who murdered a fellow prisoner at Atlanta because he feared the man was trying to assassinate him on gangland orders, was escorted to the hearing in the ornate caucus room by a score of federal marshals.

He arrived in the hearing room shortly before 10 a.m. EDT but his actual testimony was delayed about 20 minutes. The heavy guard bore witness to reports that the underworld has placed a $100,000 price on his head for talking to federal authorities.

Valachi gave the senators a private briefing Thursday, emerging for the first time from his hideaway in the District of Columbia jail.

Awaiting the somewhat tardy start of the hearing before the Senate investigations subcommittee, Valachi sat puffing on a cigarette and facing a bevy of cameramen "shooting" him from all angles.

He wore a dark gray suit, white shirt and white figured tie. His red hair appeared even redder under the harsh television lights, and contrasted with his bushy dark eyebrows.

The first seven or eight rows of the spectator seats were taken up by Capitol police, Senate employes and others with required identification. Chief U.S. Marshal James McShane said "scores" of U.S. marshals were on hand.

wood was presented a certificate from the National Red Cross lauding his service as chapter chairman during 1962-63. The presentation was made by the new chairman. Henwood was also given a pen and pencil desk set by the chapter.

The guest speaker was Lamar M. Prosser, disaster director for the Red Cross in the eastern U.S. Prosser spoke on his recent work in Africa, where he helped resettle 60,000 Watutsi tribesmen in the Congo. He also worked among the 2,000,000 Algerian refugees made homeless by the war for independence there.

Reputation For Neutrality

He emphasized that these vast assistance projects were possible because the Red Cross, due to its reputation for neutrality, can operate free from political pressures.

"All we have to do is establish that a human need exists," he said.

Prosser was introduced by Fred Berger, chairman of the dinner committee.

On hand to congratulate the incoming and outgoing officers was Congressman Willard S. Curtin, who made a special trip from Washington to attend.

Other Speakers

Other speakers included Miss Kathy Anderson, president of the High School Red Cross Council; Paul Sauerbry, United Fund Campaign chairman, on behalf of John Catzin, president of the United Services Federation; and Oppenheimer, who paid tribute to his predecessor.

Oppenheimer is also president of the Regional Library, and a past president of the Levittown Lions. Professionally he is first vice president of the Pennsylvania UPI Editor's Association and a member of Sigma Delta Chi, journalism society.

Managing Editor

Formerly sports editor and city editor of the Courier-Times, he has been managing editor for five years. Oppenheimer is married to the former Miss Mary Elizabeth Rives of Ruston, La. and has two children, Charlene, 11, and Randy, 9.

He graduated from New York University and has worked for Associated Press in Guam, and at the Lafayette (La.) Daily Advertiser, the Wilmington (Del.) Star and the Philadelphia Bulletin before coming here.

He's a Navy veteran of three years in the Pacific having taken part in the invasions of Iwo Jima, Okinawa and the Philippines, among others.

Rev. John A. Shannon, pastor of the Bensalem Methodist Church, Cornwells Heights, gave the invocation and benediction for the affair.

Pageant Of Uniforms

A pageant of uniforms worn by Red Cross volunteers of the past, present and future was presented. Radio announcer Tom Earley was master of ceremonies for this part of the program.

Among those taking part were Ed Sylvester, field director of the Lower Bucks chapter; and Kathleen Ann Pagano, "Miss Bucks County."

Organ music during dinner was provided by Peggy and Paul of the Central Melody Music Center, Levittown Shopping Center.

Musical Program

Following dinner, the Pennsbury High School stage Band presented a musical program and provided music for dancing.

On the dinner committee, chaired by Berger, were Oppenheimer, Bertram Rearick, Mrs. Whalen, Mrs. Durwood LaMont, Mrs. Bruce Lockwood, Mrs. Paul Beckert, Mrs. William Henwood, Mrs. Peter Spezzano, Mrs. Ralph Hallowell, Mrs. Charles Muschell, Mrs. William Kenderdine and Mrs. R. Flanagan Gray.

Football Traffic At Neshaminy

Middletown Township police and Neshaminy School System officials today announced that for all Neshaminy home football games parents travelling to the game for the purpose of dropping off pupils should approach the school from the Langhorne area.

Neshaminy plays host to Easton High School tonight.

The officials cautioned the parents to use the Old Lincoln Highway and enter the Senior High School driveway and exit from the Junior High School driveway.

After the game this pattern, officials said, should be repeated.

Officials hoped that this pattern of traffic, first tried out last Friday night, would expedite traffic-flow.

Man Found

husband, Mrs. Harris telephoned John Herrmann, 1312 Moon Drive, Yardley, a close friend and Harris' foreman at the Roebling works.

Herrmann and Mrs. Herrmann rushed to the Harris home. They made several telephone calls to various friends but were unable to uncover a trace of the missing man.

Finally they decided to make an inspection of the shore of Lakeside Lake, only a few feet from the Harris house. Harris on occasion had spent some time at the lake.

Spots Legs

Herrmann spotted the legs sticking out of the brush. He took the two women to the Harris home then notified police.

Both Falls Township and Tullytown police responded; the Harris address is near the line which divides the two communities. Officer John Steen of Tullytown in turn notified Chief Walterick at his home.

First reports were that the man had been drowned. However, officers discovered that he was still alive, although unconscious.

Then they discovered a bullet wound in the man's forehead. A .22 caliber bullet frequently causes very little bleeding, Walterick said.

The Levittown Fairless Hills Rescue Squad took Harris to the hospital.

No Note

Walterick this morning said that he found no note in the Harris home and that friends know of no reason for any suicide attempt, other than the vague possibility of difficulty at work.

Mrs. Harris within the past year has lost her mother, father and a brother, the parents dying suddenly and the brother after a protracted illness.

10 Race Horses Quit Compound

NEW GLOUCESTER, Maine (UPI) — Ten race horses escaped from a New Gloucester fairgrounds compound Thursday and cavorted along the Maine Turnpike before being recaptured.

State police learned of the situation when a motorist stopped at the gray toll gate and asked the collector: "Is this the win, place or show window?"

Keene Home Group Plans Fund Drive

A drive to find 500 persons willing to contribute $10 each is to be launched shortly by Historic - Bristol - on - Delaware to pay for the furntiture purchased this week during the auction of the contents of the Keene Home.

It is hoped to put the furnishings, many of which go back to the 18th century, on display in Bristol.

At the moment the furnishings have been paid for by a note signed by several local businessmen. The money raised from the public will be used to repay this loan.

Sudden Sale

The sale of the Keene Home effects came so suddenly that members of Historic-Bristol-on-Delaware had no time to organize a fund campaign before it took place.

Paul V. Forster, president of the group, told members yesterday the furnishings, all of which were placed in the Keene Home when it was built on Radcliffe St. in the early part of the last century, had cost a total of $8,317.

However, this figure has been considerably reduced by donations made since then.

Mrs. James Emack, a cousin of the late Senator Joseph R. Grundy, has given $2,000, and James Biddle, assistant curator of the American wing of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York City, has given several valuable chairs worth $660.

Last night several persons gave contributions of $100 towards paying off the loan.

Formed Earlier

Historic - Bristol - on Delaware, a group formed earlier this year, hopes to secure the Keene Home and make it a historical showpiece open to the public.

Since the furnishings purchased at the auction on Tuesday are the original furnishings, the home would become one of the few historical showplaces in the United States so equipped.

Although some homes contain period furniture, few of them have the original pieces, and few of them date back as far as the Keene Home.

A special committee was appointed last night to consider what immediate steps can be taken to raise funds.

Headed by Bristol photographer Gene Nichols, the committee will meet at Bristol Friends Meetinghouse on Monday.

U.S. Hits 190 Million

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A blue light blinked today on a big board in the lobby of the Commerce Department, proclaiming the word that the U. S. population had jumped to 190 million.

The occasion saw cheers, applause, and even some tears.

The new total registered on the "census clock," a string of colored lights on a U. S. map.

Each bulb blinks every seven and one half seconds to mark a new birth. The total is recorded on a speedometer type dial located on top of the board.

The new census figure marked a 20 million increase in population since April 12, 1960. The total is expected to hit the 200 million mark sometime in 1967.

Actually, the 190 million mark was reached at 10:59 a.m. but the "clock" was stopped until Commerce Secretary Luther H. Hodges arrived for the ceremony.

Photographers persuaded Hodges to hold two children in his arms during the ceremony — an event which inspired the tears.

The youngsters were Ginny Goodlatte, 4, and her four-month-old brother, Douglas. They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Goodlatte of nearby Suitland, Md.

received Type I vaccine by the end of next week.

He lauded the response shown by nursing homes in the county. Between 2,500 and 3,000 patients will have taken the vaccine, he said.

Great Response

So great has been the response, Dr. Meyer said, that he is requesting that authorities where possible, come to the health department in Doylestown to pick up their supply of the vaccine.

Meanwhile, officials expressed thanks to nearly 2,000 volunteers in the county who worked at last Sunday's clinics.

Praise went out to the service clubs and junior chambers of commerce which shared in supplying coordinators for the clinics; to visiting nurses associations, the American Red Cross, Grey Ladies, hospitals, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, local fire companies and police departments.

High Degree

"They have discharged their responsibilities with a high degree of effectiveness," a spokesman said.

Two other feedings are necessary to complete the campaign. Type III serum will be given Oct. 27 and Type II on Dec. 8.

The cooperating counties are Bucks, Montgomery, Delaware, Philadelphia and Camden.

Penjerdel President Addresses LBC Group

By SCOOP LEWIS
Courier-Times Staff Writer

Lower Bucks County's Regional Cooperation Council last night was told of the importance of inter-governmental cooperation in the sprawling metropolitan area between Trenton and Wilmington, Del.

John W. Bodine, president of Penjerdel, addressed council members at their third annual dinner held in the Cavalier Lounge, Beaver Dam Road, Bristol Township. Penjerdel is a non-profit, non-governmental agency, which gathers and publicizes information about regional questions.

Bodine pointed up the need and the potential of voluntary cooperation among the many local governments within the metropolis. He noted that one of the examples of local cooperation is the joint purchasing of supplies which the Lower Bucks Regional Council has in operation.

Fugitive Plan

He also pointed out the fugitive plan used by police in municipalities on both sides of the Delaware River, who cooperate to catch escaping criminals.

Bodine, a Rhodes scholar who holds three Oxford degrees, emphasized the tremendous population growth in the metropolitan area extending from above Trenton to below Wilmington. The region, though interdependent, has 377 local governments in 11 counties in three states. "It has 25 United Funds and 49 special districts and authorities," he added.

"The increase of 1,500,000 people in the 20 years from 1940 to 1960 was half again as much as the entire growth in the first 250 years — from William Penn's time to 1940," Bodine stated. By 1985, he said there will be an additional 3,000,000 people in the booming area.

Guidance Need

Bodine also cited the need for the increased use of public transportation. He said that 85 per cent of the people commuting between Boston and Washington, use their own cars. "We need more people using the trains and buses," he declared.

In conclusion, the Penjerdel executive said the great potential for inter-governmental cooperation is on the complex affairs of our metropolis — on the problem of guiding its tremendous growth in an orderly manner. "The more rapidly we can attain this goal, the more fully we will have attained the full potential of inter-governmental cooperation."

Bodine was introduced by Harry W. Fawkes, president of the Bristol Township Board of Commissioners and chairman of the Lower Bucks Regional Cooperation Council.

Robert Steward, Morrisville Borough manager and chairman of the council's administrative board, gave a brief report on the council's activities during the past year.

Chester W. Mebus, secretary of the Pennsylvania Economy League, was among the gusts.

Kennedy

Christ of Latter-Day Saints (Mormon).

Delivered Stern Speech

What made the evening take on successful, if not unusual, proportions for Kennedy was that he had delivered a rather stern indictment of many policies and ideas dear to the hearts of the radical right, the John Birch Society and such Republican conservatives as Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

Such a speech runs counter to the conservatism that marks this city, seat of the Mormon church, and for that matter, much of the state. But Kennedy was applauded heavily about a half dozen times — particularly for his energetic defense of the nuclear test ban treaty and the administration foreign aid program.

Obviously fired by this peak reception of his current tour, the President again headed westward today. Before departing Salt Lake City, the President planned breakfast with President McKay and other high officials of the church.

Started Test Generator

From the Salt Lake Airport, he pressed a key starting a test generator at the flaming Gorge Dam on the Utah-Wyoming border, a project which the President said would mean that the Colorado River Basin would no longer be "the home of an erratic flow of water."

"The Colorado River, under this project, will be a mighty force for industrial and economic development," Kennedy said in a statement prepared for the brief ceremony. "It will serve, in addition, millions of tourists, fishermen and nature lovers."

The Chief Executive's itinerary today took him to Cheney Stadium in Tacoma, Wash., for a speech; Tongue Point, Ore., where a citizens committee wants his support in converting an old naval facility into a reclamation study center; Redding, Calif., and finally tonight to the Lassen Volcanic National Park near Redding.

Tate Reveals Record Budget

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) —Mayor James H. J. Tate sent a record budget of $319,246,606 to city council Thursday and pledged no increase in municipal taxes for at least four years.

The mayor is the Democratic candidate for the November election. The budget included pay raises for 28,000 city employes.

ceived, placed the two boys under arrest.

They had made the telephone calls from a booth in the Levittown Shop-A-Rama, he said, during their lunch period.

They admitted making the call, he said, but could give no motive.

Bishop Egan currently has almost 2,500 students, both boys and girls, although it was built to accommodate less than 2,000.

Father Linus was not available today to indicate what disciplinary action, if any, the school might take against the boys. Bishop Egan was closed for the day and the entire clerical faculty was attending a diocesan meeting in Philadelphia.

Similar Scares

The bomb scare at Bishop Egan was the first of the season. Similar scares have been all-too-frequent occurrences at Lower Bucks County schools over the past few years, as well as across the country.

However, they died down last year when two youths were arrested for a similar attempt at St. Mark's elementary school in Bristol borough.

Prompt police action in such cases has been credited with all but ending such hoaxes.

The names of the two youths arrested this week have been withheld since they are juveniles.

Going in Circles

By Al Chester

A Levittown teenager did so well in a recent essay contest that the Jewish War Veterans which sponsored the contest nationally voted him a special award.

When the results were announced at the recent national convention in Washington, D.C., the top two winners were each given $200 scholarships, and that was supposed to be the end of the prizes. But the essay of Myron Sussman, 17, of 8 Silverspruce Road, Snowball Gate, was considered so close in quality to the first two that conventioneers passed a resolution awarding him a third prize of a $50 savings bond.

Myron is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Sussman. His father is a member of Levittown Post 697. The contest was open to sons and daughters of JWV members throughout the country.

A graduate of Neshaminy High School, Langhorne, Myron is now attending the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Boston.

The award was presented to Myron at a special ceremony held recently in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dorfman of Levittown. Harry Rosenthal, commander of Post 697, made the presentation.

It's open season on the political front these days, and Democratic candidates were given some advice recently on how to bag their game.

Over 250 candidates for county, borough and township office attended a recent "Democratic Election Campaign School" at the George Washington Motel at the Valley Forge interchange of the turnpike. They heard political experts offer tips on how to campaign.

The school was sponsored by the Pennsylvania Democratic State Committee.

When one of the speakers failed to show at the meeting of school director candidates, Mrs. Bernice Kessler, president of the Falls Township School Board and a candidate for re-election, pinch-hitted for about half an hour till the lecturer arrived.

Mrs. Kessler discussed the duties of school directors, problems that might arise, and gave one tip on campaigning: "It takes a lot of hard work."

Mrs. Helen Kimble, of 322 West View Ave., West Bristol, almost hit a couple of deer the other night on Newportville-Fallsington Road, Bristol Township.

The road seems to have been crowded with deer, in fact, because a small deer had been killed nearby a few minutes earlier by a car.

Mrs. Kimble figured the two larger deer had been the parents of the dead fawn.

Youth Hurt When Motorbike Hits Car

A 15-year-old Morrisville boy was injured last night when the motorbike he was riding ran into the side of a moving car.

Morrisville police took the boy, Charles Stadler of 42 W. Maple Ave., to Mercer Hospital, Trenton, where he was treated and released.

A hospital spokesman said the boy had extensive abrasions on the left thigh. Police identified the driver of the car as Gary Nitzsche of 593 Eldridge Road, Morrisville.

A passenger in the car, Joan Nitzsche, of the same address, suffered a slight back injury, police said, and was treated by her family doctor.

The accident occurred at 7:30 p.m. on W. Bridge St. at Mercer St. The car had an estimated $75 in damage, police reported. There was no report of damage to the motorbike.

Investigating the accident were Sgt. Stanley Naprawa and Patrolmen Mahlon Cummings and Joseph Cavanaugh.

Man Held For Assaulting Local Police

A Trenton man was held yesterday in $1,000 bail for a later hearing Tuesday on a charge of assault and battery on Morrisville patrolman.

Police said Francis Pinchot, 20, of 18 Fitzrandolph Ave. will be given a hearing before Justice of the Peace Harry Christ in Morrisville.

He is charged with assaulting Patrolman Joseph DiGiorgio after an early morning disturbance yesterday in the Transit Diner, E. Bridge St.

Complaint Lodged

DiGiorgio said a waitress called police after a fracas began at 3 a.m. She reported that four youths were making noise and annoying her.

Patrolman DiGiorgio said he sent to the diner and when he entered, Pinchot grabbed him about the neck, struck him in the mouth and hurt his wrist.

DiGiorgio went outside and radioed for police assistance and police from Falls and Lower Makefield responded.

One Escaped

The four youths left the diner, police said, but a search was made of the area and three suspects were captured. The fourth was still missing, police said.

The three who were arrested are Pinchot and two companions, Jack Kelmmer, 22, of 805 E. State St. and William Stettner, 22, of 1739 Brunswick Ave., both Trenton.

At a hearing early yesterday, Squire Christ fined all three $25 and $9 costs each for disorderly conduct. In addition, the assault charges were lodged against Pinchot.

Woman Given Jail Sentence

Bucks County Judge John P. Fullam today sentenced a Falls Township woman to 10 days in the County Prison for hitting another woman on the head with a table leg in August of 1962.

The woman, Mrs. Betty Ohler of Lovett's Trailer Court, Old Route 13, was convicted of assault and battery charges by a Bucks County Jury last May.

The two women were involved in a love-triangle according to testimony taken during the trial last year. The victim, Mrs. Zelda Teich said that the fight developed when she attempted to enter Mrs. Ohler's trailer. She testified that her husband, Joseph Teich and Mrs. Ohler were living in Mrs. Ohler's trailer at the time.

Mrs. Teich said that she wanted to talk to Joseph. Mrs. Ohler testified that she pulled Mrs. Teich from the trailer by her hair when the woman insisted on entering. Mrs. Ohler said she later took a tableleg from her car but that she did not strike Mrs. Teich a hard blow.

Mrs. Ohler was arrested by Falls Township police on Mrs. Teich's complaint.

Russell Carter Out Of Hospital

Supervisor Russell Carter, who serves as roadmaster of Lower Makefield Township, yesterday was reported to be resting at home after a stay at Doylestown Hospital.

Carter has not reported back to work but is doing fine at home. He had a hernia operation. Carter was discharged on Sunday.

On Inspection Tour

3-Man Team Visits Morrisville Plant

A three-man safety and good housekeeping inspection committee arrived at Stauffer Chemical Company Victor Chemical Division's Morrisville plant recently.

This eleventh nationwide tour, now on a biennial basis, will include all of the Victor Division operations.

In keeping with Stauffer's rigid safety policies and accident prevention program, the 1963 committee will place greater importance on the precautions established for all hazardous operations. Cleanliness, orderliness, and maintenance will also be rated, with additional points awarded for plant security and protective measures.

Last Winner Cited

The last inspection on a company-wide basis was held in 1961, and the winner of that award was the Tarpon Springs, Florida plant.

"Improvements in all operations indicate that there will be worthy competition from all operations," said committee chairman, Matthew C. McManus. The other operations which will be inspected are located at Chicago and Chicago Heights, Illinois; Nashville and Mount Pleasant, Tennessee; Tarpon Springs, Florida; Morrisville, Pennsylvania; Butte and Melrose, Montana; South Gate and Richmond California.

Committee Listed

Stauffer personnel serving with Mr. McManus, who is Employee Relations Representative, are: R. S. Newby, Assistant Chief Engineer, Victor Division; and J. M. Andrus, Technical Service Representative.

Charles W. Stager, plant manager here at Morrisville, said, "The award is usually made to the winning plant shortly after the committee's visit. We have made a fine showing in the past, and we are making every effort to win the coveted award this year."

Jews To Observe Yom Kippur

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jews throughout the world will flock to synagogues at sundown tonight in solemn observance of their holiest holiday — Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement.

The evening service ushers in the most important fast day in the Jewish religious calendar and ends the 10 penitential days which began with the Jewish new year (Rosh Hashana) on Sept. 18.

According to traditional Jewish teaching, all men on the new year face divine judgment for their deeds during the past year.

On Atonement Day, the judgment is sealed and the period of repentance and intercession reaches its climax with rigorous fasting from sundown to sundown.

The services will start tonight with the singing of the solemn hymn Kol Nidre and will end at sundown Saturday with the ceremonial blowing of the shofar (ram's horn).

If the referendum is approved at the coming election, a constitutional convention would be set up in July 1964 with delegates from each senatorial district, two of whom would be nominated by each party for election the preceding May. The goal of combined Bucks County leagues is to reach 100,000 registered voters by telephone, speakers or other media.

At next Monday's meeting, a film entitled "A Woman's Place" will be shown and narrated by Mrs. William E. Goode and Mrs. Donald Worob. Mrs. S. A. Davis, vice-president of the league, will explain the so-called unit system under which league study meetings will be held this year.
